2010 target: halt the loss of biodiversity

Figure 1 | Beyond the boundary. The inner green shading represents the proposed safe operating space for nine planetary systems. The red wedges represent an estimate of the current position for each variable. The boundaries in three systems (rate of biodiversity loss, climate change and human interference with the nitrogen cycle), have already been exceeded.

The target agreed by the world's Governments in 2002, “to achieve by 2010 a significant reduction of the current rate of biodiversity loss at the global, regional and national level as a contribution to poverty alleviation and to the benefit of all life on Earth”, has not been met.

- I just want to congratulate you with a fantastic program for the up-coming conference. This must be the best IENE-event ever? I wish you good luck with the conference and the works shops, and I'm really sorry not being able to be with you. Too busy building up an international network on the environmental impacts of wind power.
